TE MANAIA STANDING ARTWORK (The Guardian Spirit)

The guardian spirit (a supernatural being) plays an important role in the Maori world. To the Maori, every person on earth has a Guardian Spirit which can be described as an unseen light surrounding each individual.

During life, the guardian is a protector from evil and untimely accident.

Te Manaia are usually depicted in side profile symbolizing their role as messengers (i.e. part in the spirit world and part in the earthly world).

They normally have the head of a bird (sky), the body of a man (earth) and the tail of a fish (sea) symbolic of the spiritual balance they have between the realms.

The three fingers and toes have varied tribal meanings. To some, they represent birth, life and death, to others, they represent the three baskets of knowledge and yet to others, faith, hope and love. Sometimes, Te Manaia is depicted with a fourth finger symbolizing the afterlife.

The Manaia is an Iwi Spiritual Guardian, Provider and Protector over the air, waters and land.

TE MATAU A MAUI STANDING ARTWORK (The fish hook of Maui)

In ancient folklore, the exploits of Maui (half God / half man) stand unrivaled. On one such adventure, Maui stowed away in the waka (canoe) when his four older brothers departed on a fishing expedition. When they were far from land, Maui revealed himself and convinced his brothers to paddle further out to the deepest sea where fish would be in abundance. With his enchanted fish hook which he had fashioned from the jawbone of his great grandmother, with paua (abalone) shell eyes to see in the depths of the sea and a tuft of dog hair to keep the hook warm in the freezing depths and to retain the scent of the bait (blood from his nose), Maui cast his fishing line.

As soon as the hook descended to the ocean floor, it was devoured by a giant fish. The ocean foamed and boiled as Maui struggled with all his strength to land the fish. Finally, the fish yielded and floated to the surface.

Te ika-a-Maui (the fish of Maui) more commonly known as the North Island of New Zealand had arisen in the south Pacific Ocean. Te Waka a Maui (the canoe of Maui) is known as the South Island and Stewart Island is Te Punga a Maui (Maui's anchor).

The fish hook is the Maori symbol for provision and prosperity.

PIKORUA STANDING ARTWORK
(The Double Twist)

In Māori culture, the Pikorua represents the enduring connection between people and cultures. Its design derives from the piko piko fern whose fronds curl around and envelope one another.

In its single (figure eight) form, the Pikorua represents the eternal bond between two individuals. The shape has no beginning or end and symbolizes the two life paths, that may move apart for a while but always come back together again.

The double and triple twist forms represent the relationship between different peoples, cultures and whanau (family).

They were often gifted as a symbol of friendship between tribes.

In all its forms, Pikorua signifies an eternal binding together between two parties. It represents friendship, love, family, together, loyalty and epitomizes the strength and beauty of loving, enduring relationships.

HEI MATAU SCULPTURE

A skillful fisherman became a very important person in the tribe and his success was attributed to his hook whose 'mana' or presence pleased the spirits. Such a hook was given a personal name and was greatly treasured. Legend says that the demi-God Maui used a hook made from his grandmother's jawbone to fish the North Island of New Zealand from the depths of the sea.

The fishhook has several meanings including strength, determination, good luck and safe travel across water. It is believed to bring peace, prosperity and good health.

KORU SCULPTURE – NOT CURRENTLY AVAILABLE

In Māori design, the Koru has a dual meaning. It is commonly used in Māori art as a symbol of creation. It is also said to represent new life and in business, new beginnings and the strengthening of existing relationships.

Literally speaking, the baby fern frond slowly unwinds over its adolescent life as it grows into a mature frond. It then opens into a brand-new leaf on the silver fern plant where it ages and then dies. This is the fern fronds life cycle.

You will notice the Koru is carved "clockwise". Traditionally known as "sunwise circling", it represents good luck. This is because to move sunwise is to be in harmony with the earth's movement around the sun.

WAKA STERN
(Taurapa)

The taurapa carvings represent the story of Tāne (god of forests and birds) ascending the twelve heavens to obtain the three baskets of knowledge - kete tuauri (basket of peace, goodness, and love), kete tūātea (basket of prayer, incantations, and ritual), and kete aronui (basket of war, agriculture, wood, stone, and earth work) - in order to learn the secrets of life. On the way, his elder brother Whiro (evil) tries, unsuccessfully, to disrupt Tāne's journey.

The more elaborately carved taurapa would have a manaia or avian-like creature seen grappling with the two vertical rib forms representing the creative principles of life. The manaia is biting down on the tops of the two ribs, which represent ira-atua (the gods) and ira-tangata (humankind). The manaia is therefore symbolically battling the opposing notions of war and peace. The surrounding spiral system is called pitau meaning perforated spiral carving.

To carve a waka taua took great skill, and canoe-makers acquired great mana (prestige) and reputations as priests and craftsmen for their ritual and technical expertise. These qualities were seen as inseparable and would have been highly desirable in the construction of waka taua, which were imbued with spiritual significance during the transportation of warriors over great distances.

PIKORUA (TWIST) LETTER OPENER

Carved "Twist" letter opener crafted from Genesis Kauri with shaped Rimu veneer blade.

In Māori culture, the Pikorua represents the enduring connection between people and cultures. Its design derives from the piko piko fern whose fronds curl around and envelope one another.

In its single (figure eight) form, the Pikorua represents the eternal bond between two individuals. The shape has no beginning or end and symbolizes the two life paths, that may move apart for a while but always come back together again.

The double and triple twist forms represent the relationship between different peoples, cultures and whanau (family). They were often gifted as a symbol of friendship between tribes.

In all its forms, Pikorua signifies an eternal binding together between two parties. It represents friendship, love, family, together, loyalty and epitomizes the strength and beauty of loving, enduring relationships.

ICONIC KIWI BOOKMARK

When it comes time to sit back and relax with a book, this bookmark with the iconic New Zealand Kiwi crafted onto the bookmark will come in handy! Crafted from Eco friendly, renewable and strong bamboo plywood.

Bamboo is one of nature's wonders and is one of the only carbon neutral, renewable, Eco friendly, natural resources on our planet! Bamboo has thousands of uses, from bookmarks, medicines & foods to clothing or even scaffolding! Bamboo is actually from the grass family and is not a tree as you might think. Bamboo can grow up to 98 inches in just 24 hours and it produces 35% more oxygen than an equivalent stand of trees would! We would be silly not to use this amazing material for our bookmarks!

BLACK MAIRE TOKI PENDANT

For aeons Māori have long relied on the Toki, a traditional adze tool, usually fashioned from stone such as onewa or pounamu.

Beyond its practical use, the Toki was a symbol of MANA, power, authority, and good character, with profound cultural and spiritual significance. This contemporary piece, made from Black Maire timber, combines tradition and modernity to create something unique.

Featuring an intricate puhoro design by Ta Moko artist Wiremu Barriball, this piece pays homage to the enduring symbol of strength and skill.

Adjustable plaited wax cord.

PATU PENDANT

This pendant is a scaled down version of a traditional type of short club hand-to-hand weapon used in combat by the indigenous Māori people of Aotearoa, New Zealand

The Puhoro style Kowhaiwhai engraved design adds a unique contemporary touch to one side of the weapon. The other side is left bare, which enables the natural beauty of the native timber to be appreciated.

The Patu was an important cultural symbol for the Māori and was used both in battles and in ceremonial displays of strength and skill.

Today, the Patu continues to be valued and honored and is often used in ceremonial events and gifted during special occasions such as graduations, birthdays, and awards ceremonies, embodying the timeless traditions of Māori.

PUREREHUA – NATIVE WOOD

Unique and captivating

The Purerehua is a unique instrument - it produces a deep and resonant sound that is both powerful and haunting. When spun around, it creates a low-pitched hum that reverberates through the air, filling the space with a primal energy that is both mesmerizing and invigorating.

- Made from Aotearoa native timber.
- Individually made and hand-finished in Taitoko, Horowhenua
- Black display stand included
- Length 210mm - 220mm

Each piece features an engraved Māori puhoro design by Wiremu Barriball on one side. The other side has been left bare so that the natural beauty and characteristics of the native wood can be appreciated.

This is a natural product therefore; no two items are the same. Colour differences between the items received and those featured in the product photos should be expected.
