HANGI STONE SERIESHot rocks*

The Hangi Stone series is a glass form based on the concept of hot river stones that are heated in the Maori cooking pit called the Hangi.

The process of creating the form involves the blowing of the base of the vase and layering coloured glass onto the outside of the artwork which creates the rock layer formation.

Each form is totally unique as each piece is handmade.

C0158 Vase Approx. H10 x W25cm $599.00
in MADINZ Presentation Box

Colour: JA – Jade, WW – Wonderful Wai
HK – Huka Falls, DR – Desert Road,
RH – Rolling Hills, FM – Fiery Mountain,
TS – Taupo Sunset

As with all MADINZ items, each piece is beautifully presented in our exclusive Presentation Boxes which enhance the artistic ingenuity of the vase.

Each box is designed to complement the item as well as protect it in transit.

If you want to see a picture of the pieces we have in stock, please feel free to email us for a picture.

DICHROIC GLASS - PAPERWEIGHTS

Dichroic Glass contains multiple micro-layers of metal oxides which give the glass dichroic optical properties. Dichroic glass dates back to at least the 4th century AD as seen in the Lycurgus cup. Multiple ultra-thin layers of different metals (gold, silver), metal oxides (titanium, chromium, aluminium, zirconium, magnesium) and silica are vaporised. The finished glass can have as many as 30 to 50 layers of these materials yet the thickness of the total coating is approximately 30 to 35 millionths of an inch. The coating that is created is very similar to a gemstone and by careful control of thickness, different colours are obtained.

STARRY NIGHT BOWLS

"I love working with hot glass. It is a challenge to wrestle an object of beauty from a barely controlled mass of molten glass. When we work with hot glass we often heat works to a temperature where we are barely able to control them, as they cool we are able to coax them into forms both beautiful and expressive. It takes much skill and training to bring forth beautiful glass from barely controlled chaos, flame, steam and smoke. A good hot-glass artist is part designer, maker, artist, physicist, alchemist and part magician." – Brendan Sole

GLASS PAUA BOWLS

These artistically hand-crafted bowls capture the beauty of our internationally known beautiful Paua shells.

PAUA is a shellfish indigenous to the South Pacific waters surrounding New Zealand. As a unique type of abalone, paua has become a "taonga" (treasure) to the New Zealand people and the shells are often used for decorative effect. The shell has an iridescent blue-green interior and is widely used for jewelry and ornaments. It is found in rock crevices at extreme low tide.

The Maori people have had a long tradition of gathering paua for its nutritional and aesthetic qualities.

RONGO GLASS RANGE

Rongo means peace. In Maori mythology, Rongo is the god of cultivated food, especially the kumara, a vital food crop. Other crops cultivated by Maori in traditional times include taro, yums (uwahi), cordyline (ti) and gourds (hue). Because of their tropical origin, most of these crops were difficult to grow except in the far north. This design is a depiction of freshly tilled earth, ready for planting.

New Zealand's National Symbol – The Silver Fern

The silver fern is becoming increasingly recognized overseas as the national symbol of New Zealand.

It was originally adopted by the New Zealand Native Rugby Team which visited England in 1888 and has since formed part of the uniform (or badge) of successive representative sporting teams. From the early 1900s, the fern leaf has been used as a trademark for meat and dairy exports.

RECTANGLE SILVER FERN PLATE

On 18 May 1908, to mark the attainment of Dominion status, the Secretary of State for Colonies approved the New Zealand Government's proposal to substitute a wreath of fern leaves for the laurel wreath on the Governor's Ensign. This usage, also, continued until about 1935. The fern leaf has been used as a distinguishing badge for New Zealand military formations, particularly during the Second World War, and was also used to mark the graves of New Zealand servicemen in overseas countries. In the most recent revision (1963) of the New Zealand Coat of Arms, two fern leaves provide a base for the supporters to stand upon.

SQUARE SILVER FERN PLATE

There is no question that the Silver Fern is the most recognized symbol of New Zealand. For over a century, it has been the emblem of our sports men and women. It is used extensively as a symbol by Government, tourism, trade organizations and commercial brands.

The SILVER FERN says "New Zealand".
