WOODEN KIW

The Kiwi, symbol of New Zealand, is one of the world's most unique birds. It was once widespread throughout New Zealand but sadly the gradual degradation of their natural bush habitat has led to their decline. The Government and private sectors are working together in a successful campaign to preserve the Kiwi for the future.

TE MANAIA STANDING ARTWORK (The Guardian Spirit)

The guardian spirit (a supernatural being) plays an important role in the Maori world. To the Maori, every person on earth has a Guardian Spirit which can be described as an unseen light surrounding each individual.

During life, the guardian is a protector from evil and untimely accident.

Te Manaia are usually depicted in side profile symbolizing their role as messengers (i.e. part in the spirit world and part in the earthly world).

They normally have the head of a bird (sky), the body of a man (earth) and the tail of a fish (sea) symbolic of the spiritual balance they have between the realms.

The three fingers and toes have varied tribal meanings. To some, they represent birth, life and death, to others, they represent the three baskets of knowledge and yet to others, faith, hope and love. Sometimes, Te Manaia is depicted with a fourth finger symbolizing the afterlife.

The Manaia is an Iwi Spiritual Guardian, Provider and Protector over the air, waters and land.

TE MATAU A MAUI STANDING ARTWORK (The fish hook of Maui)

In ancient folklore, the exploits of Maui (half God / half man) stand unrivaled. On one such adventure, Maui stowed away in the waka (canoe) when his four older brothers departed on a fishing expedition. When they were far from land, Maui revealed himself and convinced his brothers to paddle further out to the deepest sea where fish would be in abundance. With his enchanted fish hook which he had fashioned from the jawbone of his great grandmother, with paua (abalone) shell eyes to see in the depths of the sea and a tuft of dog hair to keep the hook warm in the freezing depths and to retain the scent of the bait (blood from his nose), Maui cast his fishing line.

As soon as the hook descended to the ocean floor, it was devoured by a giant fish. The ocean foamed and boiled as Maui struggled with all his strength to land the fish. Finally, the fish yielded and floated to the surface.

Te ika-a-Maui (the fish of Maui) more commonly known as the North Island of New Zealand had arisen in the south Pacific Ocean. Te Waka a Maui (the canoe of Maui) is known as the South Island and Stewart Island is Te Punga a Maui (Maui's anchor).

The fish hook is the Maori symbol for provision and prosperity.

HEI MATAU SCULPTURES

"Whakairo" – carving, art or craft, carefully carved from native New Zealand Rimu, gifted to human kind by Tane Mahuta God of the forests and inlaid with Paua shell, created by Tangaroa God of the Sea.

Hei Matau (fish hook). A skilful fisherman became a very important person in the tribe and his success was attributed to his hook whose 'mana' or presence pleased the spirits. Such a hook was given a personal name and was greatly treasured. Legend tells that the demi God Maui used a hook made from his grandfather's jaw bone to fish the North Island of New Zealand from the depths of the sea.

These sculptures are an ideal corporate gift and also very popular as a conference speakers gift or award.

KORU SCULPTURES

In Maori design, the Koru has a dual meaning. It is commonly used in Maori art as a symbol of creation. It is also said to represent new life and in business, new beginnings and the strengthening of existing relationships.

Literally speaking, the baby fern frond slowly unwinds over its adolescent life as it grows into a mature frond. It then opens into a brand-new leaf on the silver fern plant where it ages and then dies. This is the fern fronds life cycle.

You will notice the Koru is carved "clockwise". Traditionally known as "sunwise circling", it represents good luck. This is because to move sunwise is to be in harmony with the earths movement around the sun.
